THE YALE CLUB NEW YORK CITY

Cercle de l'Union Interalliée 33 rue Fbg St Honoré 75008 Paris, France

The Cercle de l'Union Interalliée, also known as the Cercle Interallié, is a social and dining club established in 1917 at No. 33 Rue du Faubourg Saint-Honoré in Paris, France. It adjoins the embassies of Britain and Japan. The club includes royalty and political figures as its international members. It was established as a place of welcome providing moral and material resources to the officers and personalities of the Allied nations in order to develop the allied life that had just begun. The war having ended, the need for the Union Interalliée was apparent to everybody, as it was more necessary than ever to maintain harmony between the people who had fought together. The club has reciprocal exchange privileges with a number of private clubs around the world including the Yale Club of New York City whose 1963 members initiated the invitation on our behalf.
